Home is where your heart is!

I grew up in a country with mountains and lakes. The above scenery could very much be from my homeland Austria. It will always have a special place in my heart. A friend gave me a little wooden box with the inscription "Home is where your cradle was." In it is a little bag with some earth from where I was born (or at least I hope so). I have been away from home for most of my life, but I always get a little emotional whenever I visit.

Now that I have a bigger awareness and have been growing spiritually by leaps and bounds, I have come to realize that there is another home. Our permanent home, our real home is actually in heaven, spirit world, the other side. I hear that it is breath takingly beautiful and you can actually create your own reality. If you would like to live in a cabin near a lake and woods, or in a bustling city; you choose, you create! Whatever strikes your fancy. If you are a golfer on earth, you can continue playing golf on the other side. Maybe I will get my elusive "hole in one" there, ha!

Apparently, many of us have made several trips back and forth in order to learn and grow. Good thing we come here with amnesia otherwise we would be miserable and feel constantly homesick. Some of us are coming back to repeat the same grade because we didn't learn, and then the more advanced souls are here to show the way to enlightenment. But all of us are here just for a short time and then we go home. It is a temporary assignment. Do the best you can, enjoy life, and don't be so hard on yourself. We are all works in progress. Let's help each other, regardless what your religion, where you were born, or what language you speak. We are all interconnected and part of GOD. All of us are equal!

You are probably wondering by now, why come here at all when it is so beautiful and peaceful on the other side? One would have to be insane to want to come back again to this harsh planet. And understandably so, but since heaven is perfect you cannot learn empathy, sympathy, etc. from books. It has to come from first-hand experience. That's how you truly learn for the higher good!

Enjoy your stay, spread your light, and have a wonderful trip HOME!
